Correspondence of the Sentinel.

BEAVER DAM, Feb. 25, 1856.

Messrs. Editors:—The warm weather which we have experienced lately seems to have put the frozen stream of travel, and, every body is in the habit of seeking a home and business there. Beaver Dam is the scene of one of these daily miracles, which are only miracles to us, because they happen in the ordinary course of events; namely—a blockade of teams and farmers' wagons, gathered from every quarter of a region which was the undisputed possession of the Indian. The blockade is caused by the Western village, a complete encampment of untraveled Indians, who do not dream of a civilization as far surpassing them in energy, as their own surpasses that of the continent of Europe.

By the 15th of March, we are expecting the La Crosse and Milwaukee Road to be in operation. Preparations are making for a glorious celebration on that occasion. The Deer Dam Arsenal, boasting now about fifty men, have been organized, uniforms ordered, and their arms are to be delivered in a few days. A large band is also being organized by subscription.

The La Crosse depot is erected and nearly finished, and is a large and commodious building. The company will undoubtedly have to increase its dimensions if they really do, as a depot, as they cannot depend on private storehouses for storage. Three private storehouses are up, and three more under way. There will be an immense amount of wheat delivered at this point, and twenty good sized storehouses will be necessary to accommodate the business.

The South has been in operation in Madison, and such will be the experience here.

Messrs. Hicknell and Tullington intend opening two large lumber depots here, the latter having contracted for some six million feet of lumber to be delivered in Beaver Dam, on the Rock River Valley Railroad and the latter intending to make his shipments directly from the Milwaukee river. One of two lumber yards is in connection with steam saw mills. The lumber is to be carried on the
